MAPUA LEISURE PARK

Almost 40 years in private ownership, the park has over 20 acres of parkland, with the :dal waters of the Waimea estuary bordering half the park's perimeter. With views out into Tasman Bay and Rabbit Island, two na:onal parks a short drive away, fishing, food and relaxa:on at our doorstep, it is no wonder Mapua Leisure Park is a holiday park like no other, where people return year aJer year.

Mapua Leisure Park has retained its park like sePng, where people of all ages feel welcome and safe. Over the summer, people from around the globe, gather for a few weeks of sun, fun and family, having the freedom to enjoy the facili:es in the park and the local area. Temperatures remain in the mid to high twen:es over the summer and winters are mild compared to many other areas. On a perfect winter's day, it would be hard to find a beRer place to sit back and enjoy your :me away from the rest of the world.

Take a walk to the Mapua Wharf and see what all the fuss is about….

HISTORY OF MAPUA

In 1910, the surrounding area was surveyed into a township and was renamed Mapua which, translated, means abundance or prolific. The first post office and telephone exchange connec:ng Mapua with Nelson, opened in 1912.

Mapua Wharf was originally known as the Western Entrance and took on the new township name that surrounded it. It had become the main port in the local region, having relocated from the original port at the end of Bronte Road, known as Bronte Landing.

From 1912 the era of Mapua as the fruit shipping port began, with the shipping of up to a ton of strawberries a week. Expansion of the facili:es grew over the next decade, with sheds and other ameni:es added to store and protect the produce. In 1921, by July, over 33,000 cases of produce had leJ from the wharf, a significant volume being apples. By the end of apple season in 1948, over half a million cases had passed through Mapua Wharf.

The Mapua Wharf handled almost all the fruit from the region, because it could s:ll accommodate the bigger ships and Nelson was a significant travelling distance by road. However, in 1951, the Waterfront Workers Strike bit hard around the country. Mapua Wharf lost six months of produce and as Nelson port reopened first and had beRer facili:es, the Mapua trade was moved there by road.

By 1957, many jobs had been lost and the wharf was no longer the centre of the community. No other commercial vessel has crossed the sand bar at the channel entrance since the wharf ceased as an export port. These days only the Rabbit Island Mapua Ferry and a variety of pleasure craJ, ply the waters of the Waimea Inlet and food and retail businesses have taken over the storage sheds.

The early 2000's saw the clean-up of the site, which was used for the produc:on of organochloride pes:cides, from the late 1940's to the late 1980's. By 2007, the site was decontaminated and since then the Mapua Wharf waterfront area has been redeveloped. An amphitheatre has been built on the waterfront and it has addi:onal carparking at the rear. The wharf area has been modernised and con:nues to be a popular spot for locals and visitors alike.
